From Campbell's History

Dr. Alvin J. Ingram was raised in Jackson, Tennessee, and received his BS, MS and MD degrees from the University of Tennessee, Memphis. After two fellowships at Campbell, he joined the staff in 1947 as a pediatric surgeon and served as chief of staff from 1969 to 1976. He retired in 1983. A World War II Army veteran, Dr. Ingram was the only orthopaedist in a group of 10 physicians who were invited by President Lyndon Johnson in 1968 to tour the active field hospitals in Vietnam. He served as president of many organizations, including the Tennessee Orthopaedic Society, American Orthopaedic Association, and American Board of Orthopaedic Surgery. Among his honors, Dr. Ingram was given the Distinguished Alumni award from UT Memphis, Distinguished Southern Surgeon Award from the Southern Orthopaedic Association, and the Pioneer Award from the Pediatric Orthopaedic Society of North America. Following his death in 1999, the family established the Ingram Lectureship at The Campbell Foundation. At this event held each May, all the senior residents present their research projects and a nationally-known orthopaedic surgeon is invited to speak.

Foundation to Edit New Publication

Dr. Andrew H. Crenshaw has recently become Editor-in-Chief of Current Orthopaedic Practice, a peer-reviewed, general orthopaedic publication designed to translate clinical research into best practices for diagnosing, treating, and managing musculoskeletal disorders.

Published bimonthly, this journal covers the spine, shoulder, elbow, wrist, hand, hip, knee, foot and ankle, as well as pediatric orthopaedics, orthopaedic trauma and sports medicine. Four-color photographs and illustrations assist in conveying key information orthopaedic surgeons need to effectively practice in today’s fast-paced healthcare environment.

Campbell Clinic surgeons contribute to many other medical journals and textbooks such as:

- Foot & Ankle International (Editor-in-Chief Emeritus, E. Greer Richardson, M.D.)
- AAOS Now (Editor-in-Chief, S. Terry Canale, M.D.)
- Fractures in Children, 5th, 6th, 7th editions (Co-Editor James H. Beaty, M.D.)
- Numerous journal articles by staff, fellows, and residents
