Campbell at AAOS 2016

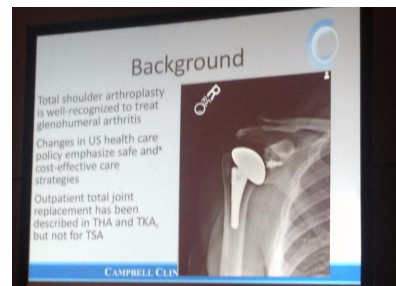

Several years ago, Campbell Clinic and the Campbell Foundation set a goal to make a favorable impact upon orthopaedic research and education. Under Department Chair Dr. Terry Canale's leadership, Campbell research became staff-driven and focused around areas of our unique expertise. A strategic investment of time and money was made to design a research infrastructure that would deliver discoveries and make a difference. This year's AAOS Annual Meeting was proof of the wisdom of that strategic effort. Campbell Clinic's presence was strongly felt throughout this year's meeting. Thank you for supporting Campbell research!

Campbell Presence at AAOS:

At this year's meeting, Campbell staff, fellows and residents contributed to:

8 podium presentations (+ served as moderators on 3 other sessions), 14 instructional course lectures, 5 posters, 2 career development sessions, 2 symposia, and 1 didactic discussion.

2016 Charles S. Neer Award for Clinical Science Research:

"Outpatient Total Shoulder Arthroplasty in the Ambulatory Surgery Center Environment is a Safe Alternative to the Inpatient Hospital Setting: A Matched Cohort Study" research by Tyler Brodin, MD, Ryan Mulligan, MD, Fred Azar, MD and Quin Throckmorton, MD, was selected as the prestigious Neer Award winner during the ASES Specialty Day.

Award Winning Research:

Each year, the AAOS Subspecialty educational committees recognize the leading research submissions at the Annual Meeting. This work is known as the "Top 10," and is highlighted on the last day of the meeting. This year, one poster and three of our 8 podium presentations were selected as "Best of AAOS," including:

- "Psychosocial Risk Factors of Post-Operative Pain in Ankle and Hindfoot Reconstruction" by Ryan Mulligan, MD, Kevin McCarthy, MD, Ben Grear, MD, David Richardson, MD, Sue Ishikawa, MD, and Drew Murphy, MD

2016 William W. Tipton, Jr., MD Leadership Award, one of the most prestigious AAOS awards, was presented to S. Terry Canale, MD. The Tipton Award recognizes his lifelong and abundant contributions to the field of orthopaedics, research, and humanitarian outreach.

Orthopaedic Review Course: Jeff Sawyer, MD, served as Course Director for the 2016 Orthopaedic Review Course at this year's meeting, to much accolade from all in attendance.
